

I'm filling a comment regarding docket 17-108. I'd like to express deep concern regarding the FCC's plan to repeal protections ensuring an open and transparent internet.

Repealing this protection would only hurt consumers and can only stand to benefit large corporations.

This protection keeps speech free and ensures that all businesses and people are given an equal share of voice, instead of just catering to the highest bidder.

As the FCC it is your DUTY to ensure that communications in this country are structured, and that laws are created and upheld to protect consumers and the ability to freely distribute information.

The internet belongs to all of us, don't put it into the hands of those that would abuse power.

Thank you,

Catherine Kokoszka